If you are a person of dual nationality (or if your driver's license issuing country differs from your home country), or if you are in a situation in which your period of stay in total in the issuing country cannot be proved due to reasons such as that the embarkation/disembarkation seals are not stamped on your passport at EU's borders, or that you have used the Automated Gates upon entry and departure, you will be requested to bring other documentation (Please refer here for more information on how to prove the period of the stay in an issuing country).
- (4) Translation of your foreign driver's license

You will be granted a special exemption from a driving test for license exchange procedure, if your driver's license was issued from Indiana (U.S.A.).

6. Flow of the procedure

※ Length of stay in the license issuing country:
at least ninety (90) days in total after the license was issued

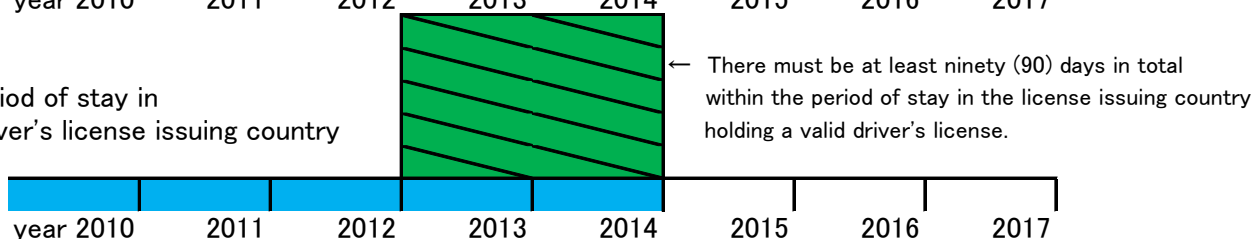

Applicant must have stayed in the license issuing country with a valid driver's license for at least ninety (90) days in total.

For example: If a person has obtained a license in 2012, and stayed in the issuing country until 2014,

• Period of valid driver's license

• Period of stay in driver's license issuing country

※ How to prove your stay in the license issuing country

(1) If they do not affix embarkation/disembarkation stamps on your passport in your license issuing country (including EU countries):

You need an original certificate of employment, paycheck stub, certificate of graduation, etc., to prove your stay in the license issuing country.

The stay in the license issuing country cannot be proved with only embarkation/disembarkation stamps affixed in Japan.

(2) If you have dual citizenship, or had your passport issued somewhere other than your country of birth:

You must prove your stay of at least ninety (90) days in total among the time span that passports for both countries (the country of your passport issue and your country of birth) are valid.

However, you cannot prove your stay with your passport if they do not affix embarkation/disembarkation stamps on your passport in either of the countries.

In that case, you need an original copy of a certificate of employment, paycheck stub, certificate of graduation, etc., to prove your stay in the license issuing country.

(3) If you had SOFA status:

You must prove your stay in the license issuing country with a military service record, transfer order, etc. Please note that your stay cannot be proved with your passport, considering the fact that those with SOFA status are entitled to transfer between U.S. military bases without a passport.

Also, you need a "DD 214" to prove expiry of your SOFA status.
